

Patient engagement in clinical trial phase or/and in the regulatory submission phase (workshop)

September 24th, 2020, 15h (Brussels time) / 9am (US East time)

Including patients in the selection and development of Clinical Outcome Assessments (COAs): an area of clinical development where the patient perspective is becoming more and more relevant

Clinical Outcome Assessments (COAs) is an essential component of clinical trials to collect patient (caregiver, clinician) perspective on treatment benefits and risks. The development of a valid and reliable COA instrument is an iterative process that includes patient (caregiver) input. The patient and industry perspective will be discussed: progress made so far, current challenges, areas of improvements... and allow discussion between the panelists and the participants followed by an interactive session about a guidance tool in development: How to reach a patient-focused COA strategy implementation?
